

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFACE.

"I well believe
Thou wilt not utter what thou dost not know:
And, so far, will I trust thee."—SHAKESPEARE.

The flattering success which the author has met in publishing the "Pacific Cryptograph," has induced him to offer a work which he is convinced will, after a careful examination, be found indispensable for communicating on business by telegraph.

All business is supposed to be important; and if important, it should be sufficiently guarded to elude discovery, when examined with scrutinizing attention by those who are practical experts in the art of deciphering.

The economical manner in which telegraphic messages may be transmitted by the aid of this volume, will be sufficient inducement for its introduction; as by its use, lengthy communications may be reduced to the limited ten-word dispatch, thereby affording opportunities for obtaining full information without extra expense, or the loss of time incurred through an interchange of letters.

The entire work has been prepared with the utmost attention to accuracy, and with a due regard to the Cipher Words, which have been carefully selected to prevent errors in transmission by telegraph.

DIRECTIONS.

The sentences have been classified under different headings, as well as the nature of the work would permit. These sentences should be used wherever applicable, whether the subject is according to the heading or not.

Every letter of a word, and every word of a message, should be plainly written. Distinct writing will save much time and trouble.

In writing messages, sentences should be selected regardless of grammatical construction, as the object is "to be understood economically." Sometimes there must necessarily be a word, or words, too many in a sentence; again, words may be missing which will be understood without difficulty, as the superfluous or missing words are discovered by the context. Many words may be implied, when there is reason that a correspondent may understand what is meant.

The sentences are all constructed in the plural, as they are mostly used in the name of firms; but when used by a single person, the signature will be sufficient explanation.

Words are sometimes printed with a hyphen, as on page 18—"damage-d"; and sometimes with a parenthesis, as on page 48—"We expect he (they) (she) will be here about"—to denote that the first may be intended for either damage or damaged; and the last a party, steamer, vessel, or goods; the context will indicate which is meant.

In case of a dash, as on page 94—"Can you ship within—days?"—the number of days intended will follow the sentence.

For freight rates, it will seldom be found necessary to add per pound, per cental, or per ton, as the amount quoted will show per what quantity.

At the end of every classified subject, there are blank spaces for words and sentences that may be required for special use.

Under "Our Business," may be entered names of firms, ports, cities, steamers, vessels, names and descriptions of different articles, stocks, bonds, or other specialties that may be required by different firms; and if the blanks are found insufficient, a supplement may be made to this volume. The cipher words are in alphabetical rotation, the last of which is, Roger; from which word it may be continued, by commencing with words of the letter S, and continuing through the alphabet, so there will be found a sufficient number of blank words for any number of specialties.

CRYPTOGRAPHY.

Although the Cryptograph may be used by many different parties, yet each can have a different cipher. Sundry persons may even use the same volume, and yet be unable to decipher each other's messages, unless they are in possession of the same combination.

To communicate certain words, phrases and sentences by telegraph, either for the sake of economy or secrecy, other words than those intended are substituted. The cipher words contained in the fifth column are alone to be telegraphed. They are all proper words, names, etc., each counted one word, and are such as will pass over any telegraph line or cable in the world, without extra charge. These words are more accurate and less expensive than figures in telegraphing. The figures or numbers are only for a combination in making the cipher, but may be used on postal cards.

The first column contains the numbers by which the sentences contained in the second column are designated, in transmuting the substitute, or cryptic word, to a literal meaning.

The fourth column contains the numbers by which the cipher words contained in the fifth column are designated, in transmuting proper words and sentences to cryptography.

For explanations of the third and sixth blank columns, see "double index."

This volume may be used in different ways, as follows :

1st.—As a plain Telegraphic Code, reducing the number of words by substituting, or using the opposite cipher words regardless of the numbers ; for example—page 92, sentence, "No change worth reporting ; everything is about the same." Telegraph word, "Field."

2nd.—To put the above sentence into a cipher word, it may be done by the sender adding, and the receiver deducting, or by the sender deducting, and the receiver adding ; that is, counting a certain number of words forward or backward. Instead of using "Field," the sender may add fourteen to the number of "Field," 2941, which would make the cipher word "Fiech" ; the receiver would deduct fourteen from "Fiech," number 2955, the remaining number would be 2941, which is the number of the original sentence. The number agreed on may be different for every day in the week, or it may be changed weekly, monthly, or whenever desired. To deduct from the first part, the last numbers will furnish the balance, and to add to the end, the first words will be the continuation.

3rd.—The rotation of the words may be changed either before or after adding or deducting ; for example—starting with the first word, and numbering them 4, 2, 5, 1, 3, then writing them for the message according to their numbers 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 ; on this plan, the fourth word occupies the place of the first, the fifth that of the third, etc. The receiver then numbers them 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, and writes them out according to the rotation in the key, as above, 4, 2, 5, 1, 3, which brings them back to the original rotation. If there are ten words with a five-word key, the second five are transposed in the same way. If there are only three words, the above key would be, 2, 1, 3, ignoring the 4 and 5, because there are not words enough for the full key. This key may be made for ten or any other number of words. The above plan is good for a message of cipher words, but is of no account for a message of plain words.

4th. A holocryptic cipher may be obtained as follows : To the first word may be added 42 ; to the second, 17 ; from the third may be deducted 71, etc. The receiver will deduct the number which the sender adds ; and add where the sender deducts. On this plan, the same word may occur twice in the same message with a different transmutation.

5th.—Double Index—A permanent cryptograph may be made in the third and sixth columns by selecting cipher words indiscriminately from the fifth column, and entering the numbers of such words in the third column, opposite the sentences which the cipher words are intended to represent, and entering the numbers of such sentences in the sixth column, opposite the cipher words selected. Thus, if 2228 be written in the third column, opposite number 2175, "Buy at seller's option," and 2175 in the sixth column, opposite the cipher word "Doctor," the party desiring to telegraph the above sentence will find the number 2228. By turning to the printed number 2228, the cipher word will be found to be "Doctor," which being telegraphed, the receiver finds opposite "Doctor," 2175, the number of the original sentence. In this case it will be necessary for correspondents to have the exact copy of the numbers written in both volumes.
